integrated habitats - metropolis

- Matropolis is a new urban typology building block for cities to deal with current global challenges.
- It combines natural and built environments, aiming to create sustainable and resilient urban spaces.
- The design integrates green infrastructure and natural landscapes to support biodiversity.
- It promotes the creation of new habitats for various species, including endangered ones.
- The layout and design focus on harmony and coexistence between urban and natural elements.

hospitals supporting biodiversity particularly endangered species...