The Wider Family Learning-Nexus: A Social Impact Evaluation Study Through Football

Presenters Joan Goss (formerly O'Keefe) and Justine Gallagher (Graduate tutor/research assistant

Sub theme inclusivity and research through Wider Family Learning

Wider Family Learning (WFL) has been shown to be a powerful tool

WFL promotes lifelong learning for the whole family:

- Engaging parents in learning, boosting children's achievement while improving skills and engaging mothers, fathers and carers in further learning
- Learning encourages opportunities for parents/carers, grandparents and other adults to share their own skills, knowledge and culture
- Courses promote learning as a positive enjoyable experience that continues throughout our lives
- Providing a good introduction to intergenerational learning
- Building confidence in supporting their child's learning

Theoretical Underpinning (outcomes) to drive outputs

Wider Family Learning is the 'first step' of the game. It provides outcomes in the form of personal goals of confidence, employment, social cohesion and changes of aspiration (Lamb et- al,. 2009)

Family learning is a tool which requires 'active engagement' of local people to improve or raise awareness of local learning capacity (Cara and Aldridge (2003) and Duke (2004)

WFL is a structural mechanism that provides process and content, which can be used to share understanding of regional educational intergenerational capacity (Goss, McKenna and Gallagher 2012 unpublished).

Family Learning agencies that adopt a regionally responsiveness enable parents' /family education and training 'local needs to be met ' (McKenna, 2004, Dench, Hillage and Coare, 2006)

Social Impact Assessment is a useful research framework and 'Impact mapping can make useful delineation between outputs, outcomes and impact' Taylor and Bradbury-Jones (2011, p133)

Civic responsibilities- complimentary vision

The civic vision and cultural responsiveness of Northumbria as a regional University is complementary to that of SAFC Foundation (Northumbria University Corporate Strategy 2009-2014 and the SAFC Foundation Aims)

This shared vision reflects the interlocking of collective ideas and an agentive –collaborative approach (Bruner, 1996)

By sharing this vision from the premise of theory and practice, we can evaluate existing policies and strategies, which will help to inform this social impact evaluation study . This has been made possible through wider family learning namely the SAFC Foundation (football providing the financial and contractual mechanisms)

(Goss, McKenna and Gallagher, 2012, unpublished)
